Buchalter Adds Jeffrey Wolf as Shareholder in Scottsdale

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz.: Buchalter has named Jeffrey Wolf a shareholder in its Scottsdale office, strengthening its litigation and franchise law team as the firm celebrates 20 years in Arizona.

Wolf, a commercial litigator with more than three decades of experience, joins the firm's Litigation and Franchise Law Practice groups. He has represented clients across the hospitality, restaurant, fitness, and health sectors in federal and state courts nationwide, and he also serves as outside general counsel to several businesses.

His addition comes as Buchalter marks 20 years since establishing its Scottsdale presence through the 2005 integration of attorneys from Brody, Levinson & Weiser. The office now includes 60 attorneys and staff, reflecting strategic growth in the Southwest region.

Earlier this year, Buchalter grew its team, bringing on real estate shareholder Matthew Levine and intellectual property shareholder Jonathan Talcott. Levine guides clients through complex commercial real estate deals, from negotiating office leases to finalizing sales. At the same time, Talcott, ranked in the 2025 IAM Patent 1000, takes on complex intellectual property disputes.

Buchalter plans to celebrate the Scottsdale office's anniversary next month with a client reception.
