

What U.S. GCs Should Know About Drafting International Arbitration Clauses

Kevin Perry and Joanne Elieli of Cooley offer some insight for American general counsel on the drafting of international arbitration clauses, covering preliminary considerations and specific drafting issues.

The article is posted in the Cooley blog Cooley M&A.

The topics they discuss in the article include: consider likely nature of the dispute, should the clause cover all disputes that could arise?, should you include a dispute escalation clause? could any dispute include more than two parties? will there be any enforcement issues? choice of law issues (the contract and the arbitration), institutional or ad hoc arbitration, confidentiality, the rules to be used, the number of arbitrators, the seat/place of arbitration, and the language of the arbitration.
