

How Blockchain Technology Is Transforming the Legal Industry

Blockchain technology is now being used to build tools and infrastructure that help lawyers draft contracts, record commercial transactions, and verify legal documents, reports Jasmine Ye Han in an article for Bloomberg Law.

She writes about the increased efficiency and uniformity blockchain can provide in contracting, its used in other legal documents, the skills and role of lawyers in blockchain, and the challenges ahead for the technology.

Read the article.