

Largest Immigration Law Firm in U.S. is Busy, Very Busy

*Image by Daniella
Urdinlaiz*

The only large U.S. law firm in the country dedicated solely to immigration work is in crisis management mode in the wake of President Donald Trump's immigration order, reports Bloomberg Law.

Blake Chisam, chief audit and privacy officer at Fragomen, Del Rey, Bernsen & Loewy, said the firm has started using two telephone briefings every day to alert partners about administrative issues, news updates, unsettled legal issues and upcoming risks. The firm has about 550 lawyers across the world, many of them gathering information as the situation unfolds.

The report says "Fragomen has helped clients draft letters to their board, briefed upset executives for meetings with the President, and even sued the Trump administration on behalf of a CNN journalist detained at the Atlanta airport. The firm's attorneys have also jumped in on a pro bono basis to help travelers, visa and green card holders facing deportation and uncertainty."

Read the Bloomberg article.

Join Our LinkedIn Group