

O'Melveny Tops in Survey for Firm Culture, Job Satisfaction

Bloomberg Law reports that O'Melveny & Myers has won the "best law firm to work for" in Vault's 2019 annual quality of life rankings.

Vault polled about 20,000 associates to rate peer firms and their own experiences, writes Bloomberg reporter Elizabeth Olson. They were asked about satisfaction and firm culture, as well as compensation, hours and informal training and mentoring.

Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson held onto its No. 2 ranking in the poll.

Associates described O'Melveny as having a "laid back culture" and "super interesting work," according to comments.
