

Sanctuary Cities See Legal Holes in Trump's Immigration Orders

Reuters is pointing out that President Donald Trump's executive order directing federal agencies to take away funding from self-proclaimed sanctuary cities had one big exemption for one of his favorite constituencies: the police, who would be protected from cuts.

In the article, reporters Mica Rosenberg, Dan Levine and Andy Sullivan explain that it's possible that very exemption makes it much more likely that a judge could strike down that section of the order as unconstitutional.

The article says: "The Trump administration cannot cut funds for sanctuary cities' healthcare and education while preserving money for police, since those jobs relate more closely to immigration enforcement, said Richard Doyle, city attorney in San Jose, California. He said it was not clear whether existing federal funding or only future grants would be targeted."

Read the Reuters article.

Join Our LinkedIn Group