

3 Types of Contracts and Agreements Your Company Should Be Using

Regina Campbell offers an overview of the three types of contracts and agreements that companies should consider using.

Writing on Lawyers. com, Campbell, of The Campbell Law Group, discusses employee agreements, advising that companies should use an at-will agreement that clearly states that a new hire's employment can be terminated at any time for any reason.

She also discusses vendor agreements and independent contractor agreements.

Read the article.