

Accomplished Real Estate Attorney Janet Lindeman Joins Quarles & Brady's Chicago Office

The national law firm of Quarles & Brady LLP today announced that Real Estate attorney Janet Lindeman has joined the firm's Chicago office. Prior to joining Quarles & Brady, Lindeman led all real estate legal aspects as an assistant general counsel for a national retail corporation.

Lindeman advises clients on complex commercial real estate matters throughout the United States, including acquisition, disposition, leasing, development, financing and mergers. She executes multimillion-dollar commercial real estate transactions for a variety of clients, including Fortune 500 companies, national commercial real estate developers, institutional real estate property owners and developers, and real estate investment trusts (REITs.)

"Our Real Estate team is delighted to have Janet join the firm. Her experience includes decades of real estate law in both law firm and corporate settings," said Mary Ann Murray, Real Estate national practice group chair. "Her prior role as in-house counsel provides her with a client-focused perspective that will benefit the clients she serves."

Lindeman holds a Juris Doctor from St. John's University School of Law and a Bachelor of Arts from Gettysburg College.

"Quarles & Brady has a great reputation in the real estate market and I am honored to join the firm," said Lindeman. "The firm's commitment to delivering excellent client service is impressive and I look forward to joining a top-notch team of talented real estate attorneys."
