Alston & Bird Lawyer Reviews State of the U.S. Solar Industry

In an interview published on Alston & Bird's website, David Revelt, counsel in the firm's Real Estate & Finance Investment Group, discusses the state of the solar industry in the United States, its growth and what the future holds against the backdrop of expiring state and local rebates and subsidies and the 30 percent federal investment tax credit.

He discusses how tax credits and other rebates factor into solar financing, the future for the solar industry after the ITC expires, and how he got involved in the solar industry.
