

Andrew Tuggle Joins Bradley's Intellectual Property Practice

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP is pleased to announce that Andrew Tuggle has joined the firm's Huntsville office as an associate in the Intellectual Property Practice Group.

Tuggle focuses his practice on technology and intellectual property law.

Prior to law school, Tuggle worked for a large multinational hardware manufacturer and for a small engineering-design startup. He also worked in academic DARPA- and G8-funded research. His R&D experience includes magnetic devices and materials, nanoscale electronics, computer modeling and simulation, Barker codes, and sensors.

Tuggle worked as a summer associate at Bradley in 2017 and 2018. He received his J.D. from the University of Alabama School of Law and his Bachelor of Science from the University of Alabama.