

Are Changes Afoot in the Cablevision Legal Department?

Cablevision's top 10 executives may find themselves without a job after the company's new owner, Netherlands-based Altice NV, completes the purchase of the Long Island-based company, possibly later this month, reports The New York Post.

The 10 Cablevision executives include General Counsel David Ellen and CEO James Dolan.

"Altice founder Patrick Drahi told Cablevision staff when the deal was first announced last year that he would seek to cut executives earning more than $300,000," The Post reports.
