

Are Native Archiving and Data Protection Capabilities Enough for Modern Collaboration?

As the use of Microsoft Teams has exploded, compliance officers, information governance professionals, and other risk management decision-makers must determine whether they have the right tools to secure the information that comes out of this collaboration tool, for their compliance, legal processes, and internal investigations.

Using a third-party archiving and data protection solution to capture point-in-time and point-in-context actions, enables organizations to take advantage of new capabilities within Teams without undermining their compliance requirements.

Join Pierre Chamberland, IPRO Innovation Catalyst and Michael Sampson, Senior Analyst at Osterman Research, who has been consulting on collaboration tools for over 20 years, for this webinar as they discuss how to evaluate such third-party security s
