Avoiding Mistakes in Terminating Employees

McDonald Hopkins presents a complimentary on-demand webinar giving advice on the proper steps to take when an employer terminates a worker’s employment.

Faced with aggressive governmental agencies and increasingly knowledgeable employees, employers must be prepared with effective offensive and defensive strategies for addressing employment-related issues, the firm says on its website.

The webinar covers such topics as insufficient and/or inaccurate investigations and documentation, not recognizing when severance is an option, failing to properly handle reductions in force, and proper exiting procedures.
