Ball Janik LLP Launches Claimroadmap.com in Time for Hurricane Season

June 2021 – Ball Janik LLP, a bi-coastal comprehensive services law firm focused on real estate, land use, construction, and business litigation, is proud to announce the launch of a comprehensive new service to help educate consumers regarding the process of filing property damage claims on a local and national scale.

Claimroadmap.com will provide visitors with easy-to-understand information about why claims take as long as they do, why they may be denied, and the rapidly changing legislation impacting homeowners who have property damage due to a natural disaster such as a superstorm. As hurricane season approaches, this new service will provide guidance about what to do before, during, and after a claim event.

“Insurance claims can be a complicated and drawn-out process for homeowners impacted by natural disasters, says Kelly M. Corcoran, an insurance coverage attorney at Ball Janik who will oversee all efforts relating to Claimroadmap.com. “It is important for people to have an informative resource like claimroadmap.com to turn to for information about where they can get help.”

The new site will provide visitors with up-to-date information about the assignment of benefits, shifts in regulations around attorney fees, and impacts of changes to how contractors and repair personnel conduct business. To learn more, visit www.claimroadmap.com.
