

Barnes & Thornburg Adds Insurance Recovery Litigation Partner in Atlanta

Barnes & Thornburg has added Austin Bersinger as partner in the firm's Litigation Department in Atlanta. He joins from Bersinger Law, which he founded in 2019, and focuses his practice on insurance recovery litigation and complex business disputes.

Bersinger serves as counsel to policyholders in trial and appellate matters involving coverage denials, claim presentation and bad faith matters, and does a significant amount of insurance counseling and policy review. He also has experience representing major insurers, giving him unique insight into their approach to litigation and coverage claims.

In addition to his years of law firm experience, Bersinger was an Assistance Staff Judge Advocate for the United States Air Force. During this time, Bersinger handled litigation matters on behalf of the U.S. government in military and federal courts.

Bersinger earned his J.D. from the University of Georgia School of Law and his B.A. from the University of South Carolina Honors College.
