

Best-Value Law Schools, Ranked by Debt, Pass Rates, Employment

The University of Georgia law school led the list of best value law schools compiled by preLaw magazine, a National Jurist publication.

The study ranked schools based on ultimate bar pass rate and two-year pass rate (15 percent); employment rate (35 percent); tuition (25 percent); cost of living (10 percent); and average indebtedness upon graduation (15 percent).

State university law schools make up most of the slots in the list of the top 25 best-values.
