

Biglaw Associates are being Rushed Back to Work in the Office, but why?

“Aren’t you excited to head back to the office? Oh, you’re not. But don’t you remember all of the super important professional development and mentorship opportunities you had when your the was packed full of associates and partners? Oh, no, you don’t. You must’ve had so much fun though when,” reports Staci Zaretsky in Above The Law.

“Wouldn’t you be surprised to learn that Biglaw offices were never really that full to begin with before the pandemic? It sure sounds like law firm leaders have some explaining to do. Although many Biglaw firms are now mandating office work to return their highly animated in-person working environments that once pushed occupancy limits.”

Read the article.