Biglaw Firm Forms Mental Health Task Force

Above the Law reports that Reed Smith has announced a global Mental Health Task Force to help Reed Smith's team address mental health issues as they arise.

Partner Kimberly Gold, inaugural chair of the task force, describes the firm's plan:

> "The mission of this task force is to ensure that our lawyers and professional staff have access to help whenever they or their family members experience or are at risk of experiencing mental health or substance use issues. We will also challenge the well-documented stigma surrounding these issues and cultivate a workplace culture that promotes psychological wellness and positive help-seeking behaviors."
