

Bison Trails Hires Ex-Goldman Sachs VP as Legal Head

“Bison Trails has hired BlockTower Capital’s former legal and compliance director to be its first general counsel,” reports Nathan DiCamillo in BitCoin’s Business.

“Elizabeth Ralston will be in charge of all legal, risk, compliance and policy matters at the blockchain infrastructure startup. Prior to her time at BlockTower Capital, Ralston was a vice president at investment bank Goldman Sachs. While at BlockTower, Ralston negotiated agreements with custodians, exchanges, over-the-counter desks, software providers and other service providers. She also handled venture investments in early-stage companies.”

“Ralston will tackle some of the same issues at Bison Trails, with a focus on tax implications for crypto investors participating in proof-of-stake networks.”
