

Bradley Adds Erik M. Coon and David T. Long Jr. to D.C. Office

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP is pleased to announce the arrival of associates Erik M. Coon and David T. Long Jr. to the Washington, D.C. office.

“We are pleased to welcome Erik and David to our firm,” said Bradley Washington, D.C., Office Managing Partner Douglas L. Patin. “Erik’s knowledge of government contracts and procurement processes and David’s experience with financial services industry regulations will serve as a benefit to our clients and expand our D.C. office capabilities.”

Mr. Coon is a member of the firm’s Construction Practice Group, where he represents clients in construction law and litigation matters, particularly in government contract bid protests and disputes in procurement issues. He works within federal jurisdiction to provide strategic advice to contractors, subcontractors, construction managers, sureties, architects, and engineers throughout the United States. His practice resides in the crossroads of business and government and has given him a deep understanding of the significant role that government contracts play in the financial health of many companies. Mr. Coon is a graduate of the George Washington University Law School and received his bachelor’s degree from La Sierra University.

Mr. Long is a member of Bradley’s Banking & Financial Services Practice Group, working with clients on complex matters in both state and federal courts across the country. He tailors his advice to meet the specific needs of his clients, providing counsel to individuals and corporations on their claims and outlines strategies to achieve the best possible outcome. Mr. Long has additional experience collaborating with multinational corporations to ensure compliance with state and federal regulations. He is a graduate of the Washington & Lee University School of Law and received his bachelor's degree from the University of Charleston.
