Bradley Partner Chris Lam Named Among Charlotte Business Journal's 'Most Admired CEOs'

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP is pleased to announce that Christopher C. Lam, managing partner of the firm's Charlotte office, has been named by the Charlotte Business Journal (CBJ) as one of Charlotte's 2020 "Most Admired CEOs."

The awards recognize established local leaders who have a strong vision for their companies, have shown commitment to culture in the workplace, and made significant contributions to the Charlotte community.

"We congratulate Chris on this wonderful recognition of his outstanding leadership here at Bradley and in the Charlotte community," said Bradley Chairman of the Board and Managing Partner Jonathan M. Skeeters.

A member of Bradley's Litigation Practice Group, Mr. Lam helps clients protect their business interests in disputes related to contracts, business torts, product liability, earn-outs, trade secrets, non-competes, LLCs and partnerships, defamation, motorsports, and private equity investments. His clients include individuals, start-up businesses, middle market companies, and public corporations. He also regularly counsels clients in business issues and contract drafting and negotiation.

Mr. Lam is a leader in several professional and civic organizations. He currently serves as president of the Mecklenburg County Bar and is a member of the North Carolina

Humanities Council Board of Trustees. He is a past co-chair of the North Carolina Bar Association's Administration of Justice Committee. He also is a past chair of the Business Litigation Committee of the International Association of Defense Counsel, an invitation-only, peer-reviewed organization of approximately 2,500 attorneys from more than 50 countries around the world. In addition, he serves on the Board of Visitors for Duke University's Sanford School of Public Policy.
