

Bradley Partner Robert Maddox Elected as Governing Committee Member of CCFL

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP is pleased to announce that Robert Maddox, a partner in the firm's Birmingham office, has been elected as a member of the Governing Committee of the Conference on Consumer Finance Law (CCFL).

"We are proud of Robert's client successes and many achievements in consumer financial services law, and we congratulate him on his new leadership role with the Conference on Consumer Finance Law," said Bradley Birmingham Office Managing Partner Dawn Helms Sharff.

Founded in 1926 by members of the legal profession and the financial services industry, the CCFL is a non-profit organization that offers educational services, publications, and research relating to consumer financial services law. The CCFL's Governing Committee of members establishes the policies and directs the activities of the organization.

Chair of Bradley's Banking and Financial Services and State Attorneys General & Regulators practice groups, Mr. Maddox represents clients before the CFPB, DOJ, OCC, FRB, HUD, SEC, and multiple state regulatory agencies, including banking, finance, and insurance agencies. In the past decade, he has handled more national/multi-state state attorneys general investigations and related consent judgments than any other attorney in the United States.

Mr. Maddox is a fellow in both the American College of Mortgage Attorneys and the American College of Consumer Financial Services Lawyers. He is a teacher with the Mortgage Bankers Association (MBA) as a faculty fellow on real estate law and regulatory compliance at the MBA's School of Mortgage

Banking. In addition, he has been an adjunct professor at the University Alabama School of Law, University of Alabama at Birmingham, and he currently teaches real estate transfer, finance and development and consumer finance and protection at the Cumberland School of Law.
