

Bradley's Construction Practice Group Named a 2020 'Practice Group of The Year' By Law360

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP is pleased to announce that the firm's Construction Practice Group was named among Law360's 2020 Practice Groups of the Year, one of only five firms in the nation to receive this honor.

Law360's annual Practice Group of the Year awards honor law firm practice groups that have accomplished the most significant litigation wins or deals over the past year. This year's honorees were selected from more than 800 submissions.

Bradley was named the "Law Firm of the Year" for Construction Law in the 2020 and 2018 editions of U.S. News & World Report – Best Lawyers "Best Law Firms. This is the first time Bradley's Construction Practice Group has been recognized among Law360's Practice Groups of the Year.

From initial contract negotiation and bid preparation to project close-out and dispute resolution, Bradley's Construction Practice Group has handled every aspect of large-scale construction projects across the country and around the world. The team's broad experience comes from their hands-on approach to managing both the business and legal challenges their clients face every day. Bradley's construction lawyers have advised clients on projects in the United States, Canada, and Mexico, as well as more than 35 countries across Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, the Middle East, the Caribbean, and South America. They are devoted to spending time onsite at projects and engaging with clients face-to-face on matters as they develop. Many of the firm's construction attorneys have degrees in engineering, building science or architecture and have previous practical experience working in the construction industry.