

Strategic Alternatives for Mitigating Risks in Today's Energy Climate

Burleson LLP hosted a second webinar as part of its ongoing series titled, "Drilling Down on Strategic Alternatives in the Current Energy Crisis." The complimentary event, "Part 2: Boards of Directors and Corporate Governance," now is available on-demand.

The session features key insights from a panel of energy restructuring attorneys and capital and financial advisors. Topics include the zone of insolvency; fiduciary duties of directors, officers, and controlling shareholders; strategies to limit liability; special committees; and the Delaware Standard of Review.

On the firm's website, Rick Burleson, managing partner and moderator, says, "Overseeing a company's exposure to risk can be a particularly big task for oil and gas boards of directors, given the current energy climate."
