

Carrington Coleman Adds Three New Partners

Carrington, Coleman, Sloman & Blumenthal, L.L.P. has added three new partners to the firm's team of information technology and intellectual property specialists.

They are David Black, Sam Joyner and Mark Howland.

Black, former general counsel of two Fortune 500 global publicly traded companies, has 30 years of experience representing companies ranging from start-up to mid-cap to global operations.

In a release, the firm says Joyner and Howland are seasoned intellectual property partners who established their credentials at AmLaw 100 firms.

Read details about the new hires.