Chris Christie gave his best audition to become Donald Trump's attorney general Tuesday, putting Hillary Clinton on mock trial before a riled-up audience at the Republican National Convention, reports *The New York Daily News.

The New Jersey governor relied on his experience as a former U.S. attorney "to present a case on the facts against Hillary Rodham Clinton," courtroom-style, encouraging the captivated crowd to act as a "jury of her peers."

The report by Adam Edelman says Christie made the GOP-loved case against Clinton's "failures" in Libya, Syria, Nigeria, Iran and China, following each argument with the question: "Guilty or not guilty?" The crowd responded to each question with chants of "Guilty" and "Lock her up."
