Contract Management: What Type of System Is Best for You?

The Merrill DataSite team is offering a complimentary white paper on finding the right contract management system.

The report can be downloaded.

Selecting the right contract management system can be overwhelming, said a Merrill spokesman. There are so many choices … so many vendors … so many sales pitches. Which option is right for you and your company?

The first and biggest challenge is understanding the five basic types of systems:

- Internally built
- IT built, internally developed
- ERP integrated systems
- Vendor built, installed systems
- Vendor built, web based systems

Each of these types of systems has inherent advantages and disadvantages. Once you understand those, three quarters of the work is done. To help you make sense of your options, we've created the complimentary white paper, Finding the right contract management system, that explains and compares the five basic types of systems, including an easy-to-scan comparison chart.

Download the white paper.