

Corporate Governance At UPS – Who Is Washing The Dirty Laundry In Public?

Corporate Governance at UPS is not as clean as the board would like you to think, according to an article published on SeekingAlpha.com.

“UPS portrays itself as having a fair, transparent, and shareholder friendly corporate governance practices. Not all shareholders would agree, though,” the article says. “Two of its shareholders went on a campaign to publicly irritate and antagonize the board of directors, demanding the company to change a few of its disputable practices. This article tells their story.”

Read the story.