Cyber Crime Forensics Joins eTERA as New All1ance One Partner

eTERA Consulting, an internationally recognized and award-winning leader in data and technology management, announced that Cyber Crime Forensics has joined the company's highly successful All1ance One Partner Program. The All1ance One Partner Program provides many ways for business partners to expand their business, win more clients and increase revenue by offering their clients a full range of eDiscovery services throughout the Electronic Discovery Reference Model ("EDRM").

"The strategic partnership we have created with eTERA Consulting allows Cyber Crime Forensics to offer a full range of services with an internationally recognized data and technology management company," said Richard Plummer, CEO of Cyber Crime Forensics. "We look forward to teaming up with eTERA Consulting to allow our clients to significantly reduce the cost of eDiscovery services across the EDRM. This will certainly be a win-win for all involved and we look forward to being part of the eTERA team!"

"We are very excited to have Rich and his team as part of the All1ance One Partner Program," said Mary McGinness, eTERA's All1ance One Manager. "Rich has great knowledge in the forensics space, and brings a passion and drive for client relations that the entire eTERA team can relate to. Rich, who is based in California, has experience in conducting collection and preservation for eDiscovery, incident response, computer forensics and mobile device forensics investigations. As an All1ance One Partner, Rich's unique background, along with his west coast network, will be very beneficial to eTERA's strategic growth."

Read the full report.