Daniel Johnson Joins the Littler as a Shareholder in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (Aug. 19, 2025) – Littler has expanded its Kansas City office with the addition of Daniel Johnson as a shareholder. Johnson joins the firm from Ogletree Deakins and brings more than two decades of experience in employment litigation and labor law.

Licensed in Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma, Johnson represents employers in disputes involving discrimination, harassment, retaliation, whistleblower claims, wage and hour issues, and restrictive covenant matters. He also has experience representing clients before the National Labor Relations Board, the Department of Labor, and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

“Daniel has a well-rounded and strategic practice,” said Littler Managing Director Erin Webber. “His deep litigation background and practical approach to resolving complex employment issues will be of tremendous value to our clients.”

Johnson has served as lead counsel in jury and bench trials, as well as in labor arbitrations. He earned his law degree with honors from the University of Oklahoma College of Law and holds a bachelor’s degree from the University of Central Oklahoma.

Littler, which focuses on representing management in labor and employment matters, employs more than 1,800 attorneys in offices worldwide.
