

Decatur, Morgan County Announce $98 Million Settlement with 3M, Other Defendants

“This morning has seen seismic changes in a number of long-running disputes over chemical contamination claims in the Tennessee Valley and the Tennessee River. The City of Decatur and Morgan County announced today they have reached a settlement with chemical maker 3M and other companies,” reports Brian Lawson in News 19.

“The Tennessee Riverkeeper group which sued 3M, Decatur, Morgan County and other corporations, also announced a settlement with 3M. Through these agreements, subject to final approval, 3M will support activities to address PFAS that 3M manufactured or disposed of, as well as to enhance the quality of life for Decatur residents.”

Read the article.