

Introduction to Document Assembly and Contract Management

Exari Group presents a complimentary white paper that provides an overview of document assembly and contract management solutions and gives an insight into what questions to consider when choosing software.

Those questions include:

- How many people will create documents?
- What are your infrastructure/IT requirements
- How complex are your documents?

On its website, Exari says it works with companies around the world to give them the ability to automatically assemble contracts, track every contract in their organization, and analyze those contracts to ensure compliance and enhance revenues.
