

Exclusive: Sacramento Paid $11 Million Settlement After Car Hit Boy, Grandmother in Crosswalk

“The city of Sacramento quietly paid an $11 million settlement to a family last year one of the largest payouts in city history after an elderly woman and her grandson were hit by a car in a crosswalk. In January 2018, QuiChang Zhu, 72, and her grandson Jian Hao Kuang, 6, were using a crosswalk,” reports Theresa Clift in The Sacramento Bee.

“Freeport Boulevard at Oregon Drive, according to a lawsuit filed in Sacramento County Superior Court. The intersection located between South Land Park and Hollywood Park has no traffic lights. A sedan driver traveling north on Freeport Boulevard struck the pair, killing Zhu and causing severe injuries to Kuang, including.”
