

2016 Best Legal Blog Contest – Nomination Period Is Now Open

The Expert Institute is now accepting nominations for its Second Annual Best Legal Blog Contest.

Blogs can be nominated by friends, fans, and colleagues by filling out a short form and explaining why the blog deserves a place in the voting round of the competition. The Institute says the nomination process is competitive – the more nominations a blog receives, the more likely it is to move on to the next stage of the competition, where it will go head to head with some of the best legal blogs online today.

Blogs will compete for rank within their category, and the top three blogs in any category that receive the most votes will receive prizes, as well as a permanent spot on the Institute's Best Legal Blogs page.

The nomination period closes on Sept. 5 at 12:00am (EDT), after which the nominations will be tallied and voting opened for the competition.
