

Exterro – Step-by-Step Guide to Consumer Data Requests

According to analyst firm Gartner, on average it will cost your organization $1,400 to fulfill one consumer request for data, which is required by the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), GDPR. Companies are expecting to receive hundreds to thousands of consumer requests each year. Do you have an efficient process in-place to process these requests?

If not, we invite you to download this new guide:

The Step-by-Step Guide to Consumer Data Requests:

Download this guide and you'll learn:

- 6 step consumer data request workflow
- The vital role technology plays to ensure that every request is completely fulfilled and risk is mitigated
- What organizations, data custodians and data protection officers should do to stay compliant

Download this Guide Now

If you're interested, calculate the cost of fulfilling Consumer Data Requests at your organization with Exterro's Data Subject Access Requests (DSAR) Cost Calculator.