Back to Basics on Background Checks

Atlanta-based First Advantage has posted a free on-demand webinar designed to teach employers the full fundamentals for how to build the best background checks.

The webinar is part of a series that was built around the notion that performing or commissioning background screening programs is fraught with massive confusion, despite the fact employees are usually regarded as a business' most valuable asset.

"Gathering accurate information on a candidate's qualifications is critical in protecting the bottom line, but with the extensive number of searches available, ranging from federal to county, as well as drug testing, credential verification and more to consider, the process can be daunting," said Jason Rennie, First Advantage Vice President of Sales, who is leading the webinars along with his colleague, Tammie Moser, First Advantage Senior Director of Account Management.
