

Foley Welcomes Steven Petrie as Chief Operating Officer

Foley & Lardner LLP is pleased to announce that Steven Petrie has joined the firm as its new Chief Operating Officer (COO). In this role, Petrie will be responsible for the global leadership and strategic oversight of the firm's business operations. His primary responsibilities will include designing, developing, and implementing the business operations strategy for the firm in alignment with Foley's firmwide strategic plan. He will be based in Foley's New York office.

Petrie brings nearly 20 years of strategy, finance, and broad operations experience in large law firm environments. He most recently served as Americas Chief Operating Officer at a Top 10 global law firm. Previous to that role, he served as Chief Strategy Officer at an AmLaw 100 firm.

"We are delighted to welcome Steve to Foley. His collaborative style and impressive business acumen make him an ideal addition to our executive team," says Jay Rothman, Foley's Chairman and CEO. "Steve has a proven track record of driving innovation, continuous improvement, and cooperation across large enterprises. He will be an integral part of developing and implementing key strategic initiatives to enhance the firm's service delivery models and client offerings."

"I'm excited to join Foley and be a part of a firm with such a talented group of people and rich history and culture of stewardship for its clients," says Petrie. "I look forward to helping the firm continue to build its business and engagements across all sectors, practices, and industries."

Petrie earned an MBA from the University of Minnesota, Carlson School of Management, and a BA from Yale University.
