

Former General Counsel and ContractPodAi Client, Jerry Levine, Joins as Chief Evangelist

ContractPodAi®, the award-winning provider of AI-powered contract lifecycle management (CLM) solutions, today announced the appointment of Jerry Levine as Chief Evangelist and General Counsel (Americas). As former global General Counsel and Corporate Secretary at Amelia (IPsoft), Levine effectively implemented ContractPodAi to help his legal team increase efficiency, improve compliance, and achieve greater visibility across the function. In this new role, he will use his highly relevant experience to help guide global client success both as an advisor to customers and as an internal client voice, helping shape product vision.

Levine has been a ContractPodAi client for over two years, leading its implementation at IPsoft in partnership with the ContractPodAi team. He replaced his previous CLM solution with ContractPodAi, choosing ContractPodAi both for its strength as a contract management system and its comprehensive customer support model that ensured implementation success. Leveraging his experience as General Counsel and a client, Levine's role as Chief Evangelist will include amplifying legal technology best practices, directly problem solving with clients on their own digital transformation journeys, and supporting ContractPodAi's continued product innovation as a leading technology provider for in-house legal teams.

Prior to joining ContractPodAi, Levine held leadership and consulting positions at both public and privately held companies, including Axiom and LexisNexis. He also founded a start-up-focused law firm.
