

Dallas-based Bailey Brauer Expands Office Space

The Dallas litigation boutique Bailey Brauer PLLC celebrated its sixth anniversary with a move from the second to the sixth floor of Dallas' Campbell Centre I, 8350 N. Central Expressway, which doubled the firm's office space.

"The new office is more reflective of who we are as a firm. We were at capacity for quite some time in our previous office and this gives us the much-needed room to expand," said firm co-founder Clayton Bailey, about the move. "We doubled the size of our office, giving us a more functional workspace that enhances our collaborative team approach to litigation."

"Our success as a firm has required us to expand three times in six years. Everyone here is excited about the new space and what it means for our future now that we again have room to grow," said firm co-founder Alex Brauer. Additional attorneys are expected to join the firm this summer.

In addition to Bailey and Brauer, the firm currently includes veteran business litigator Gary Powell, complex commercial and bankruptcy litigator Benjamin Stewart, and litigator and regulatory attorney Adam Bell.

Founded in 2013, Bailey Brauer has earned multiple individual and firm honors from Chambers USA, BTI Consulting Group, Benchmark Litigation, the National Law Journal, The Best Lawyers in America, Texas Super Lawyers and D Magazine.