Sidley Austin LLP announced that the firm has expanded its restructuring capabilities in Dallas with the addition of Charles M. Persons.

Persons joins as counsel and will be a member of Sidley's global Restructuring practice. While Persons will be resident in the Dallas office, he will work on national and cross-border matters as part of Sidley's market-leading global Restructuring practice.

In a release, the firm said Persons has experience in the representation of major domestic and international debtors and creditors' groups. Persons has built a practice around public and private out-of-court reorganizations and in-court Chapter 11 cases, advising on a variety of multifaceted matters including high-profile multinational restructurings. "Charles is a valuable addition to our global Restructuring group and will be an integrated member of our practice everywhere," said James F. Conlan, chairman and global practice leader of Sidley's firmwide Restructuring practice, and a member of Sidley's Executive Committee.

"The addition of Charles supports clients' needs for strong restructuring capabilities here in Dallas," said Yvette Ostolaza, managing partner of Sidley's Dallas office and a member of the firm's Management and Executive Committees.
