Cristopher Farrar Joins Bradley's Houston Office as Construction Partner

Cristopher Farrar has joined Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP's Houston office as a partner in the Construction Practice Group.

In a release, the firm said Farrar focuses his practice on drafting construction, engineering and architectural agreements, as well as service and operation-related contracts and oilfield transactions. He represents clients in a wide range of sophisticated and complex project development matters related to commercial, energy, oil and gas, power, renewable, manufacturing, chemical, pipeline, offshore, and infrastructure. He has experience managing major matters involving capital improvements and large asset-based transactions ranging from $25 million to more than $8 billion. Farrar also frequently presents at conferences and seminars on topics related to risk allocation in construction contracts.

Prior to joining Bradley, Farrar was a principal at Cokinos Young. He also has served as in-house counsel for international engineering and construction companies.

Farrar received his J.D. from Baylor University School of Law and his Bachelor of Business Administration from Texas A&M University.