

Hanzo Adds AI and Big Data Veteran Denis Maurin as Chief Technology Officer

Hanzo, a company involved in technology in dynamic web archiving for compliance and ediscovery professionals, announced the addition of Denis Maurin as chief technology officer (CTO).

Before joining Hanzo, Maurin served as the CTO of innovative startups, including his own, as well as larger businesses, whereby technology is central to achieving success. Maurin has experience with complex business critical systems, artificial intelligence and leading and growing development teams.

Maurin holds an MS in Computer Science from MINES ParisTech. He started his career with Airbus, moved to the USA to manage international projects, and acquired an MBA at the University of Connecticut. Over 11 years ago, he moved to London to take his first CTO position where he worked in intelligence and security, as well as large-scale workforce management solutions.

“I am delighted to welcome Denis to Hanzo,” said Kevin Gibson, Chief Executive Officer, Hanzo. “His expertise in artificial intelligence, machine learning and big data analytics paired with growing and leading development teams will help Hanzo scale its growth, and develop innovative products that will solve critical business challenges for legal teams and corporations managing ediscovery and compliance.”

“It’s gratifying to join an innovative technology company like Hanzo at a time when we’re just scratching the surface of what we can do to help organizations get the most out of dynamic web-based data,” said Maurin. “The work Hanzo is doing with applying artificial intelligence and machine learning to traditionally manual tasks and uncovering new ways to discover relevant web-based data is a game changer for the legal and compliance industry.”

Interested in learning more about Hanzo’s pioneering AI technology? Join us for 20-minute live Hanzo-in-Action webinar where you can see how A.I. powered investigations can help you identify, collect, and monitor key case data from across the web. <https://www.hanzo.co/action>