

Jennifer Galloway Joins Bradley in Tampa

Jennifer L. Galloway has joined Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP's Tampa office as counsel in the Banking and Financial Services Practice Group. She will serve as co-chair of the firm's Small Dollar Lending team.

"We welcome Jennifer to our Tampa office," said Bradley Chairman of the Board and Managing Partner Beau Grenier. "Jennifer brings deep experience in diverse financial matters, including regulatory and compliance issues, and she is a great fit for our Florida-based team of banking and financial services attorneys."

In a release, the firm said Galloway focuses on consumer financial services laws and regulations affecting banks, non-depository banks, including small dollar lenders, and other financial institutions. Her compliance work includes assisting clients with developing, implementing and maintaining compliance management systems, performing internal compliance audits for clients, preparing clients for outside audits, and preparing related lending documents and disclosures. She also counsels financial services companies regarding Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) preparedness, implementation and operational strategies for complying with the CFPB's regulations. In addition, Ms. Galloway assists business with all aspects of corporate law.

Galloway received her J.D. from Stetson University College of Law, her M.B.A. from Stetson University, and her Bachelor of Business Administration from the University of Georgia.
