

Judea Davis and Kya Henley Join Bradley as Associates

Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP announced that Judea S. Davis and Kya M. Henley have joined the firm as associates.

Davis is a member of the Litigation Practice Group in the firm's Nashville, Tenn., office. Based in Bradley's Washington, D.C., office, Henley is a member of the Government Enforcement and Investigations Practice Group.

Prior to joining Bradley, Davis clerked for Judge Michelle Childs of the U.S. District Court for the District of South Carolina and Judge Garrison Hill of the South Carolina Court of Appeals. In addition, she served as a law fellow and law clerk for the Equal Justice Initiative, researching constitutional and criminal law issues and representing clients before the Alabama Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Davis received her J.D. from Duke University School of Law. She also holds a Master of Arts from Duke University Graduate School and a Bachelor of Arts (cum laude) from Clemson University.

Henley represents companies and individuals in a range of government and internal investigations, regulatory inquiries, white collar criminal defense matters, compliance issues, civil litigation, and enforcement actions.

Prior to joining Bradley, Henley was an associate at McGuireWoods in Baltimore. Previously, she also served as a public defender representing indigent clients in Maryland state courts.

Henley received her J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School and her Bachelor of Arts from the University of Maryland. During law school, she served as vice chair of the Black Law Students Association, as a student attorney in the Juvenile Justice and Human Trafficking Clinics, and as a graduate student instructor in the College of Literature, Sciences and the Arts. She also was a summer law clerk in the trial division at the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia.