

Langley & Banack Launches Law Podcast

San Antonio law firm Langley & Banack, Inc. announced it has launched a new podcast featuring in-depth discussions and stories based on cases from the field.

The first series focuses on fiduciary litigation, hosted and produced by attorneys Chris Hodge and Jobe Jackson. Attached is a photo of Hodge (left) and Jackson (right).

In a release, the firm said each Langley & Banack law podcast offers in-depth discussions about litigation that involves will and trust clashes, power of attorney contests, declaratory judgments and guardianship challenges. Together, Hodge and Jackson examine cases and approaches to this area of the law using real-world examples and high-profile guests who add to the conversation.