Leah Campbell Joins Bradley's Banking and Financial Services Practice in Charlotte

Leah M. Campbell has joined Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP's Charlotte office as a senior attorney in the Banking and Financial Services Practice Group.

In a release, the firm said Campbell has experience representing financial services clients in federal and state courts, as well as before state regulators. Her representative litigations included FDCPA, UDAAP, and anti-money laundering claims.

More recently, Campbell has advised banking clients on regulatory compliance in technology agreements, outsourcings, and cloud services arrangements. She has also advised on cybersecurity regulatory risk and data privacy, as well as intellectual property issues in M&A transactions.

Prior to joining Bradley, Campbell served as senior counsel in the Cyber/Intellectual Property/Information Technology group for Deutsche Bank AG in New York.

Campbell received her J.D. (magna cum laude) from Tulane University School of Law and her Bachelor of Arts from The Evergreen State College.
