

Randall Oyler Joins Quarles & Brady's Litigation Practice in Chicago

Quarles & Brady LLP announced that Randall L. Oyler has joined the firm's Litigation & Dispute Resolution Practice Group as a partner in its Chicago office.

In a release, the firm said Oyler represents motor vehicle manufacturers and distributors on various dealer network matters, vehicle distribution matters, market representation strategies, dealership litigation, and corporate transactions in the automobile, motorcycle and power sports industries. Spanning more than 25 states, he has litigated dealership matters before federal and state courts and state administrative agencies.

"New business and legal challenges are emerging in the motor vehicle industry, which can impact a company's operations, compliance and, ultimately, its go-to-market strategy," said Paul Langer, Office Managing Partner and Chair of the Chicago Office Litigation & Dispute Resolution Practice. "Randy's deep background and experience working with prominent manufacturers and distributors will be an invaluable asset to clients who are active in these areas."

Oyler co-founded an alternative investment management company that has raised over $100 million to fight global poverty through direct investments in micro-finance institutions in developing economies all over the world. He is a member of the American Bar Association's Forum on Franchising and has been recognized in Best Lawyers in America® for Franchise Law.

Oyler earned his law degree from the University of Chicago Law School, where he served as developments editor for the University's Legal Forum, and his B.A., summa cum laude, from Wheaton College of Illinois.