Redgrave LLP Adds eDiscovery Partner Christine Payne

Christine Payne has joined Redgrave LLP as a partner in Chicago. Payne most recently led Kirkland & Ellis LLP's eDiscovery efforts as co-chair of the firmwide Electronic Discovery Committee.

In a release, the firm said Payne's experience includes handling complex commercial litigation, including bet-the-company cases, as well as restructuring-related litigation, products liability litigation, antitrust matters, and ongoing and pending investigations. She has also counseled clients on litigation readiness, developing eDiscovery strategy, and recovering from data loss. Payne also teaches, speaks, and writes frequently about eDiscovery strategy and advocacy. She currently is an adjunct professor of electronic discovery law and problem solving at Loyola University Chicago School of Law.

Payne received her J.D. (with honors) from the University of Texas at Austin School of Law and her Bachelor of Arts (magna cum laude) from the University of Colorado at Boulder.
