Venable Continues to Grow Its Corporate Practice in DC with the Addition of Karen Hermann

Karen C. Hermann has joined Venable LLP's Corporate Practice as a partner in the Washington, DC office. Hermann's practice focuses on corporate transactions, with an emphasis on mergers and acquisitions, carve-out transactions, corporate reorganizations, strategic alliances, and joint ventures.

The firm said Hermann has represented private and publicly held corporations, private equity firms, and startup and emerging companies in a wide range of industries, but particularly in regulated industries such as aerospace and defense, technology, federal contracting, cybersecurity, professional service, and healthcare. She has worked on business and transaction matters, including transaction structure, integration of acquired companies, and unique requirements for regulated industries, for both buy-side and sell-side deals. She also advises joint ventures and other entities on such matters as entity formation, ownership structure, corporate governance, intellectual property portfolio management, staffing and business models, and exit strategies.

Hermann received her J.D. from George Washington University Law School in 1999 and her B.A. in English from Fontbonne College in 1996.
