In-House Counsel See Increase in Income

The 2019 In-House Counsel Compensation Report published by BarkerGilmore reveals that in-house counsel saw their income increase by an average of 4.4 percent.

The survey compares income from 2017 to 2018.

As in past years, women in-house counsel made less than their male counterparts – collecting just 85 percent as much on average.

Male general counsel in the study made an average of $630,000, compared to $537,000 for women GCs.
